THE KING HAS SIGNED WAR BILL

VERDICT FOR ROOSEVELT IN $50,000 LIBEL SUIT

Jury Returned Verdict Clearing Former President of Charges Brought By William Barnes.

Syracuse, N. Y., May 22.—Theodore Roosevelt has won the $50,000 libel suit brought against him by William Barnes the Albany County Republican leader. The jury after 40 hours deliberation came into the court at 10.07 this morning.

"Gentlemen of the jury have you agreed upon a verdict?" asked clerk of the court, J. Clarke.

"We have," answered Foreman Soumers.

"What is your verdict Mr. Soumers?" then Clerk Clarke asked.

"We find for the defendant," was the foreman's reply.

The jury had brought in a verdict Friday morning but when the jurors were asked if they agreed with the foreman, Edward Barnes said that he found for Mr. Barnes. Justice Andrews returned the jury to their room.

When Clerk Clark reached Barnes this morning all in the court room held their breath. Barnes answered "I find for the defendant."

Col. Roosevelt shook hands with counsel and the other members of his legal battery, and with scores of Syracuse men and women who crowded to the rail.

All That Remains is Formal Declaration By Italian Cabinet--News Received With Cheers and Procession By the Populace

(Special to The Herald)

Rome, May 22.—The war bill is a law. The signing of the bill by King Victor Emmanuel, giving full power to the cabinet, takes Italy one step nearer hostilities. The news of the signing of the war bill by the King was received by a crowd of over 100,000 with great cheering. They gathered together, forming a procession headed by bands and marched to the department offices, cheering for the King, the ministers, France, England and Russia.

Reports were in circulation today that the government would delay handing passports to Baron von Miaccio until Italians in Austria and Germany have had time to return to Italy. The cabinet went into session at 10.30 immediately after it was announced that King Victor Emmanuel had signed the war bill.

Railroad officials this afternoon admitted that 100 persons may have been killed.

KITCHENER REFUSES TO RETIRE FROM CABINET

(Special to The Herald)

London, May 22.—Lord John Kitchener has refused to retire from the war secretaryship under fire. He has decided to fight his foes to a finish. His friends today declared that he had the full backing of Premier Asquith, Foreign Secretary Grey and Chancellor Lloyd George, the "powerful trim-virate" of the cabinet, and that they had endorsed his intention of staying in office.

It was learned today that Kitchener's conference with the premier yesterday was due to the organized newspaper attack launched against the war secretary. The premier told Kitchener that if he desired another post it would be given him, but if he would retain the war portfolio he would be given the support of his colleagues.

WANT SHIPPING OF ARMS TO THE ALLIES STOPPED

German Defence Union
Passed Resolutions
Today.

(Special to The Herald)

Berlin, via Amsterdam, May 22.—The first organized demonstration against the United States was made here today when a meeting was held under the auspices of the German Defence Union. Resolutions were adopted protesting against the shipping of arms to the allies by America. Councillor Wagner was cheered of several minutes after his bitter attack against the American policies.

"We must consider the American nation among our enemies," he said. "Her supplying of arms is entirely one-sided. She is deliberately aiding the allies against Germany."

Resolutions were also adopted recommending that the Imperial government forcibly demand from America the prevention of shipping arms to our enemies and to forbid the exportation from this country to the United States of goods which she can obtain nowhere else.

A resolution was passed pledging the Defence Union to support any measure rejecting any offer of mediation on the part of President Wilson.

—and then, when you go to see that other car, and the salesman strolls up with a smile:

—ask him if that car of his has a FULL-floating Rear Axle—a Rear Axle that carries the weight of the car on the axle housing and NOT on the shaft—a Rear Axle that has TWO Timken Bearings in EACH of the hubs and in the differential. That's the kind of axle you get on this Studebaker FOUR. It's the highest development that the Rear Axle has reached. And it compares with the old-style semi-floating and three-quarter floating axles as its beautifully light and strong housing of stamped steel compares with the malleable cast housing of other cars use. So don't let the salesman say "We have a floating type of axle"—ASK him if it's a real FULL-floating axle like the Studebaker. Make him take out the shaft and show you.

—ask him if that car of his uses battery ignition. And if he says "Magneto"—ask him WHY. Most of the high-grade cars, you know, have discarded magnetos, because a magneto current weakens when your motor slows up—and it doesn't give as hot a spark at low speeds as at high speeds. But a Studebaker Battery ignition is reliable at any speed. It insures steady firing—no skipping or missing. Trouble-proof, too. So don't let the salesman dodge on the ignition—ask him WHY. A magneto on an electrically equipped car is as useless as the fifth wheel on a wagon.

—ask him if that car of his drives thro' the springs—or whether it has radius rods and a torque arm. Costs a whole lot less, to be sure, to design a car that drives thro' the springs—but it makes the car HARD riding. But TWO radius rods and torque arm such as Studebaker uses keeps the driving mechanism in line, and it keeps the springs free for the one thing they are intended for—taking up the jolts and jars from the roads. That's one of the reasons this Studebaker FOUR is one of the straightest driving, EASIEST-riding cars you ever sat in. Look for radius rods on other cars.

—ask him if that car of his has Brakes that guarantee a SURE stop when you have to stop. You have to stop QUICK sometimes, you know—and hills are steep. And undersized brakes aren't any guarantee of safety at such times. Studebaker uses OVER-size brakes—larger than most cars weighing half a ton more are using. Your car ought to have brakes just as safe. So ask that salesman to show you as much brakes as the Studebaker has. Go over every little detail of those other cars. And ASK the salesmen frankly. Get FACTS.

Then see this Studebaker FOUR—and ask US just as frankly

We are more than willing to have your choice of a car rest on the facts you get. For nearly 150,000 men have done just that thing and they now own Studebakers! And the chances are that when YOU get the facts, and see what a handsome car this FOUR is and have opportunity to ride in and drive it yourself, you'll decide that it's needless to pay more than $985—and decidedly unwise to pay less.

NEWS OF THE SPORT WORLD

(By Frank G. Menke)

New York, May 20.—There are two reasons why Phinney Boyle, of Lowell, Mass., became a prize fighter. One is because his parents hitched the name of Phinney onto him; the other is an offer of $5 that lured him into his first professional ring engagement.

And now, less than two years since he climbed into a prize ring for the first time, Phinney has risen to such heights in the featherweight division that the ring experts are predicting that with another six months of experience he will dethrone Johnny Kilbane—if Johnny gives him a battle.

The parents of Phinney thought Phinney was a very pretty moniker to hang onto their offspring. The boyhood acquaintances of Phinney thought it pretty good, in fact, they thought it too pretty for a boy and called it owner a "clay." But the majority called Phinney a "clay" just once.

Phinney fought in defense of his name—and he fought often. Constant battling gave him quite a reputation as a bare knuckle battler back in Lowell and before he donned long trousers Phinney was known from farther kiding about his first name.

Phinney had just celebrated his 15th birthday when a friend slipped him a ticket for a prize fight that was scheduled by one of the clubs in Lowell. That was in September 1913. A tough young battler by the name of "Sykle" Evans was slated to meet a boxer from Boston.

When the time for the scrap came along, the manager of the club got into the ring and announced:

"The boy who was to fight Evans has crawled out of the match, is there anyone in the crowd who would like to go on with Evans?"

For a moment there was silence in the crowd and then one of the audience jumped up and said:

"I guess I can find a boy."

Then he rushed over to where Phinney was sitting.

"Say, you go in and fight that guy," said the friend to Phinney.

Phinney looked at him in a puzzled way.

"What? Me go in a fight him? What for? He ain't kidding me about my name, has he?"

"No, but you're liable to get the $5 if you box him," said the friend.

"Three dollars?" gasped Phinney.

"Say, you ain't kidding are you?"

"No. Come on up to the ring. I'll see to it that you get the money."

And Phinney, led by the hand, walked up to the ring and was introduced to the club manager.

"There's a boy that will fight Evans," said the friend.

"Will you fight?" asked the manager.

"Yes, if I get the money. This fellow says you'll give me $5. Was he kidding?"

"No. I'll give you $5. How's that?"

Phinney Boyle looked at the manager in amazement.

"Let's see the money," demanded the skeptical Irishman.

"Here it is," and the manager extracted $5 from his jeans and handed it to the amazed Boyle.

Boyle hopped into the ring and waited the fight to start at once. He feared the manager might change his mind. He wanted to fight in his straw clothes and with bare fists. But he was provided with trunks and boxing gloves were put on his hands.

Phinney Boyle walked into the center of the ring as the first round opened. Evans rushed him, landed a couple of light punches and then made a swing for Phinney's jaw. Phinney moved out of range and then sent a right to the jaw of Evans. The fight was over.

Before the end of 1913 Phinney fought 16 battles under the direction of Joe Levine, a prize fight manager who saw him the night he beat Evans with one punch. Of those 16 fights he won 7 via the knockout route.

In 1914 Phinney added to his knockout victims and developed from a ring novice to a nifty boxer. He has met, and beaten, some of the best men in the featherweight division, and those who have seen him in his 1915 fights say that before the year is over he will have earned the right to battle Kilbane.

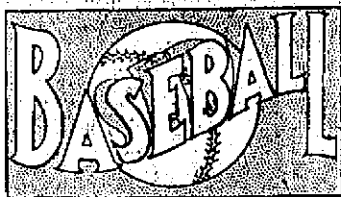

"And when he does," said Levine, "there will be a new champion."

OLD JINK WEATHERMAN

The Y. M. C. A. game with the K. of C. in the Sunset League scheduled to be played a week ago last Thursday and postponed on account of rain seems fated not to be played at all. Old man Weatherman saved his skin last evening until just one hour before the time set for the postponed game and then he turned on the water works. The game at this time means a lot to either team. If it had been played last evening as it should have been the league standing would have been changed somewhat no matter which team won. Had the Knights of Columbus won they would have kept their place, tied for first honors, and the Y. M. C. A. would have fallen behind a little, landing in third place with a percentage of .666. Had the Y. M. C. A. been the winner they would have been in the lead, having played three games and winning them all, the K. of C. falling back with the P. A. C., in a tie for fourth place. If the two teams would have come out is a hard thing to do so early in the season. The Knights showed some pretty fair ball in their game against the Marines last Wednesday but it wasn't quite in the same class with the article of ball played Thursday by the Y. M. C. A. in their game against the Morley Button Co. That might be explained by the fact that it was the Knights' first game and the Y. M. C. A.'s second. Neither team have played the same opponents as yet and a better line can be had after Monday's game, when the K. of C.'s go up against the P. A. C., which the Y. M. C. A. defeated by a small margin last Tuesday.

In the High School game this afternoon between the Portland team and the local high school ball players the fans should get some pretty fast ball. Portsmouth high has been playing air tight ball in most of their games and the boys have been getting a lot of practice. All that is asked is fair treatment from the weatherman and the boys will put up a good exhibition.

ATLANTIC FLEET AT NEW YORK

HEARST-SELIG PICTORIAL NEWS WILL SHOW IT ALL AT THE
PORTSMOUTH THEATRE
MONDAY AND TUESDAY

The majority of the people living in Portsmouth were unable to see the massing of the great Atlantic fleet in New York harbor when it was reviewed by President Wilson, but all will be given the opportunity of seeing this wonderful sight, not in reality, but on the picture screen at the Portsmouth Theatre on Monday and Tuesday.

Always on the lookout for happenings that will interest the public, the Hearst-Selig people—the best picture news getters in the business—had their camera men on the job and their "lenses" some wonderful pictures of this interesting and inspiring sight. These pictures are less than a week old and the management promises that they will not be disappointing. The gathering of this vast fleet was one of the biggest things in the history of the navy, outside of actual war. There is always something about warships that is inspiring and the next best thing to actually seeing them is to see them in the motion pictures.

Another incident that will attract special attention is the burning at sea of the old frigate Omaha off San Francisco. The Omaha was at one time one of the Navy's prides and the first wooden war vessel assigned to the Pacific coast. She was torn apart in San Francisco, sold for junk, and the hull towed out to sea and set afire. And the Hearst-Selig camera men were there when it happened.

Pictures of Mrs. Roy Booth, the champion woman bowler in America in action at the bowling tournament in Boston is also shown; and there are pictures of Art Smith, the aviator, looping the loop a dozen or more times at San Francisco.

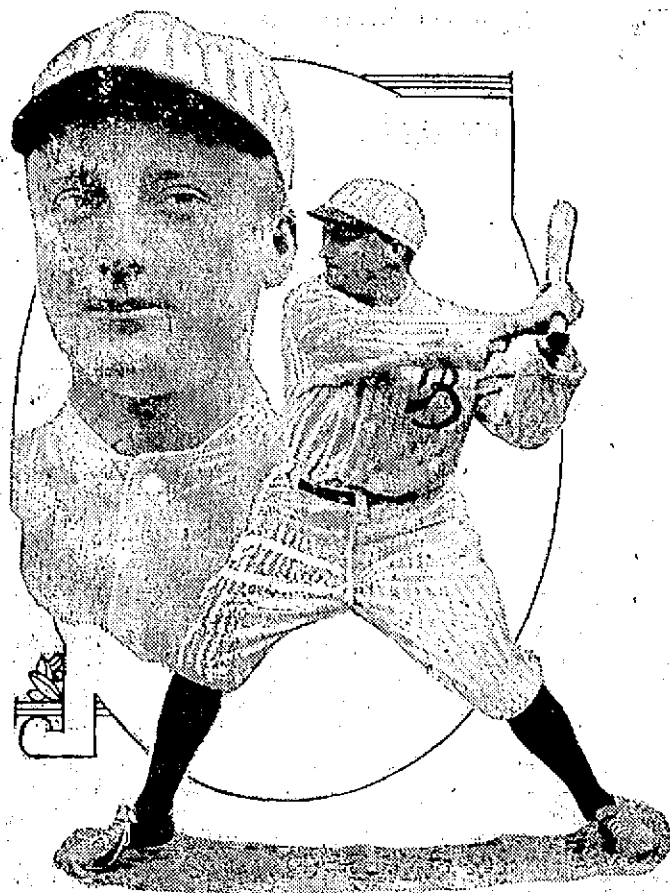

Pictures are also in Park Row in New York of the vast crowds waiting for the bulletins of news of the Lusitania.

LEE MAGEE, THE RIGHT SORT OF LEADER, SHOWING MEN HOW TO BRING IN RUNS.

Brooklyn, May 22.—Lee Magee, the youthful manager of the Brooklyn Federal league organization, while a strict disciplinarian, does not believe in expounding theories or giving lectures on "inside" baseball to his men. Rather he has adopted the time worn policy of leading them into the fray and showing them how games can be won by actually going out and winning them himself. To date Magee is the leading run getter of his squad and that he is getting results with his method of leadership is shown by the fact that three of his men, Westcott, Knuff and Cooper, are crowding him for all around honors. As he has his heart set on success it is safe to say that when October rolls around he will still be up there with the leaders in all departments of the game, and his team will be also if his men take the right lesson from the example he is setting them.

NEWS OF THE MOVIES

Growing Into a Part.

William Wadsworth, though working hard every day at the Edison studio, was not to be seen for the last three weeks. Answer—he was hidden behind a three weeks' hush which he had drawn on his face to play the He-brew in "Cohen's Luck," the three-reel comedy drama by Lee Arthur in which he is starred. With many of the scenes actually played in the ghetto, no "stage" whiskers would be allowed with the real imported thing in whiskers moored right alongside of him. "Waddy" smiled weakly when he was asked what his wife thought of his disguise—he moved away muttering. Some grew so bold as to say that his better half would not let him come home with his tangled growth. Anyway, it fooled a policeman who was stationed in the ghetto, with the players, to keep back the crowd as the pictures were being taken. The policeman pushed "Waddy" back a half a block despite his protests that he was a player and would probably be going yet had not Director John Collins rescued him from the worked-up lobby.

Romance by the Reel.

Applications for the position of stenographer in the Edison studio was quoted high on the curb as the matrimonial market closed with a crash when going to press. This time, none of your shadowy romance of the screen but real feeling romance for Harry G. Mason, assistant to Edison Director Richard Riggley and son of Dan Mason, the actor, found time to permeate into matrimony three weeks ago Miss Barbara Kuester, stenographer to Studio Manager H. G. Plimpton. But here steps in real "mellor" for the bride received, from mysterious sources, several "black hand" letters outwitting the screen for blood-curdling missives. But as Charles Brabin, the director, also chose from the same ranks his pretty wife, such a little thing as a black hand letter appears to be a bear attempt to depress the matrimonial-stenographic market, meaning a short hand method of getting married.

A Complaint Much to Be Desired.
When the Edison feature, "The Storing," was shown at the Claremont Theatre, New York, at the regular weekly showing of Edison films exclusively, Viola Dana, who is featured, was called before the screen three times to acknowledge the patrons' appreciation. A novel complaint is being received from a number of exhibitors that they are not making as much money on "The Storing" as the strength of the play rightly entitles them to, as the patrons, after once seeing the film, will not empty the house, but stay and see the film several times.

"Edison Nights" and Adventures.
"On the Stroke of Twelve" was the film featured at an "Edison Night" held recently at the Empire Theatre, 161st Street and Westchester Avenue, New York. The affair was largely attended as Gertrude McCoy, who is featured in that film, appeared at the theatre personally, and received a warm greeting from loyal "fans." Later, in the lobby of the theatre, she was nearly mobbed when she appeared and gave away five thousand photos of herself.

Clean Up the Litterers.

So much has been said and published concerning the cleaning up of towns and cities with the coming of spring, a season when nature does her best to make the country pure and beautiful, that the subject may be in danger of becoming tiresome, yet it is one that may well be agitated until every community has caught something of the spirit that prompts the movement and rises to its duty and opportunity.

And some cities are showing a true appreciation of the situation by cleaning up the thoughtless crowds that litter the streets, parks and other public places with waste paper, peanut shells, banana skins and other refuse that is so often scattered with a lavish hand by picnic and excursion parties. New York city has taken the lead in this crusade and has set an example that may well be followed by other cities and towns. On a recent pleasant Sunday a force of officers in plain clothes was placed on duty and a large number of persons who littered the streets and parks were arrested and haled into court the next morning. Light fines were imposed in connection with a severe reprimand by the court, the design being not to impose unnecessary hardship upon thoughtless persons, but to impress upon the public a clear understanding of the fact that this abuse is to be no longer tolerated.

It was a wholesome lesson and one that should result in greatly lessening the evil complained of. There is no excuse for the wanton littering of public places. Most of them, as well as the streets of well ordered cities and towns, are provided with receptacles for waste paper and other litter, and people who have not sufficient regard for appearances and the public comfort and health to use these receptacles should be taught to respect the community if they do not respect themselves, even if this renders necessary their appearance in court.

It is exasperating for a community that has taken the pains to make itself presentable to have heedless individuals undo in minutes work that it took hours and days to perform. There is no excuse for such carelessness and slovenliness, and the practice should be stopped wherever it exists. If good example and a proper request will not do the work, then let the power of the courts be invoked. It is safe to predict that not many lessons such as have been given in New York will be necessary. The thickest skinned offender is apt to give heed when he senses personal inconvenience or danger.

One couple who met for the first time on the fated Lusitania have since been married at the home of the groom in England, who was a member of the crew. They were rescued together and soon reached the conclusion to stay together. It is to be hoped that their domestic happiness may never be torpedoed, though marriage following so brief a courtship is almost as risky as the carrying of munitions of war and passengers on the same ship proved to be.

The purchase price and expense of running and repairing an automobile used by the agricultural department of New York state for less than a year amounts to something over $11,000, and even the head of the department admits that such extravagant expenditure is not called for. It appears from this and many other cases that one of the dangers of the automobile is that of bleeding the public treasury.

Monday was a great day in New York, and for the time, at least, fears of an invasion of the country by a foreign foe were laid aside. Secretary Daniels is doubtless right when he says that while the navy might be better it is by no means so inadequate as some have represented it to be.

Andrew D. White, former president of Cornell university and former ambassador to Germany, advocates military training for college students. But why should this country turn itself into an armed camp while so loudly condemning Germany for doing the same thing?

The straw hat is having a hard time in coming to the front this spring, but it is coming, and it is said the shape is such as to utterly outlaw last year's "lids." But then, the manufacturers of straw hats must live, and the dealer will be all smiles as he tells you that the old "block" won't do.

President Wilson's note to Germany was delivered just in time to give the people of that country something to think of over Sunday. And it is very safe to assume that they did some thinking.

The weather is rather unfavorable for some crops, but the farmers smile when they look at their meadows and pastures.

With the declaration of war by Italy a great deal is expected of Admiral Viale, minister of marine. Admiral Viale is regarded as one of the ablest strategists in Europe. While, of course, the movements of the Italian fleet are not known, it is said that a portion of the fleet will be at once sent to the Dardanelles to aid in the effort of the combined fleets of Germany to go into Constantinople. At the same time a great part of Italy's fleet will be required to protect her extended coast line.

Later he became a master and sailed for years for J. P. Emery and Editha Atkins of Belmont, the former being in the lumber business and the latter a big sugar plantation owner.

CURRENT OPINION

LASTING JOY NOT IN WINNING RACE

He who at the age of thirty fixes his mind primarily on the chance of getting the most money or the most fame in his own particular branch of work is almost certain to fix his eyes so exclusively upon the rules of the game that he is playing that he fails to note the changes in the standards and the demands of the larger world. The man who has entered all his hopes of success in the race for professional distinction has entered upon a career where the peril of the winner is scarcely less than the peril to the loser.

But when this kind of gospel is preached the world at once asks, "Will you advise a man to be content with less than the highest professional success?" Certainly. The man who can only be happy when he is winning prizes has a radically wrong philosophy of life.

He who wins the race for professional advancement is given the largest opportunities. But the lasting joy of life is not in the winning or the losing of the race. It is in the completeness with which we meet our opportunities.—By Arthur Twiss Huxley, President of Yale University in Baccalaureate Sermon.

SHOULD BE PREPARED FULLY FOR DEFENCE

Business Men at Conference Advocate Strong Coast Defences.

Mohawk Lake, N. Y., May 21.—The delegates appointed to attend the Lake Mohawk Conference on International Arbitration by Chambers of Commerce and similar business organizations in most of the large cities of the country aligned themselves today with the advocates of greater military preparation for National defense.

The report of the business men's committee, read today by the chairman, L. M. Cuthbert of Denver, declared that disputes between Nations "ought to be justly settled through the proceedings of international tribunals instead of war." Nevertheless, the committee members asserted their belief "that it is the part of wisdom to be prepared for the United States to be prepared fully to defend itself from possible injustice and aggression," and advocated "the strengthening of our military and naval forces so as to protect effectively our coast."

The report recommended the formation of a code of international law and the establishment of a permanent international court of justice, with an international police force to execute its decrees. In conclusion the business delegates bespoke for President Wilson in the "delicate and trying position" the "cordial and hearty sympathy and assistance of all citizens, regardless of section or party."

Edward A. Filene Spoke

Edward A. Filene of Boston, National councillor of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, urged that the United States should be willing to make sacrifice to prove its right to a place in the councils which eventually will settle the war.

Mr. Filene, who spent the four first months of the war in the zone of hostilities, said there was a growing sentiment in favor of a world court such as was discussed at the recent congress in Cleveland. He was doubtful, however, if the United States would wish to be involved in an alliance which would depend upon military force to carry out the decrees of such a court. In place of force he advocated a policy of non-intercourse with recalcitrant nations.

"Believe," he said, "that economic pressure will be much more effective and at the same time much less sanguine than any military force, which can be brought to bear."

William A. Weil, Justice of the Supreme Court of the Province of Quebec, praised the "calm wisdom" of the United States Government in its diplomatic relations with the European belligerents.

Simon E. Baldwin formerly Governor of Connecticut, made an address on "avoiding occasion for war," in which he approved the use of "courtly phraseology" in diplomatic negotiations. "A Government that would avoid occasions for war," he said, "when communicating with foreign Powers, should measure its words, for they are the words of all its people."

The conference will close tonight with the adoption of a platform.

Mobilization Prevented Two Wars

Rear Admiral C. M. Chester, U. S. N., retired, of Brooklyn, a veteran of three wars, aroused intense enthusiasm by an appeal even more martial than the previous speeches delivered by representatives of the army. Called upon to speak for the Navy, Admiral Chester pleaded for greater military preparedness. He said:

"Theories now will not apply. We are coming to a question of practice. I fought in three wars. I had preparatory orders for two other wars which were averted only by the fact that the navy was mobilized, when trouble was threatened with Spain in 1870 and with Chile in 1892. Nothing else in the world but the mobilization of the navy would have prevented these wars."

"I can assure you that you must be prepared for the inevitable that is certain some time to come. One of the dangers to this country is women's propaganda against militarism. Don't try to bring your boys up to dread the inevitable. Don't bring them up to be molluscoids."

"Only the great Prince of Peace himself will ever bring about cessation of war. Disarm this Nation? Yes, when crime shall cease and young men shall cease to go about the street and commit murder for $5 a head. When good will and good fellowship shall prevail throughout the earth, then and not till then, will this Nation disarm."

ANTI-SUFFRAGE NOTES

and Mine" gives throughout an entirely erroneous impression of the laws in regard to women.

A slide shown between the reels says: "The New York Courts recently ruled that a married woman's earnings belong to her husband." They have done nothing of the kind.

Under the New York laws a woman may work and earn money and do with it as she pleases.

She may own real and personal property, and may sell and dispose of it as she pleases without her husband's consent. The husband cannot dispose of the real estate without his wife's consent.

She is not obliged to pay her husband's bills, even though they are for family expenses. The husband must pay her bills.

If the husband fails to support her he may be arrested and prosecuted criminally. No matter how wealthy she is, or how sick or poor he is, the wife cannot be compelled to support him.

The decision of the New York courts to which the slide mentioned above refers, was in the case where creditors sought to reach property which the debtor had conveyed to his wife, to avoid the payment of his just debts. The man had not got into financial difficulties and had transferred his property to his wife on the ground that it had been bought with money earned by her. The judge decided that as the earnings of the wife had been mingled with those of the husband, with no indication by her that they should be kept separate, the property could not be transferred out of reach of the husband's creditors.

It is quite true that a contract by a husband to pay his wife for household services is void as against creditors, and property transferred to her under such a contract may be reached to pay a just debt contracted by the husband. Would women if they had the vote make it legal for a husband to pay his wife a salary and thereby defraud his creditors? There is no limit to the salary the husband could pay his wife, except the limit of his income, and no limit to the fraud that could thus be perpetrated.

A bill to allow women and children to work twelve hours a day in canneries has just been defeated in male suffrage New York. In California, Oregon and Washington, all women suffrage states, there are absolutely no restrictions as to the hours women and children may work in canneries.

If the rank and file of women realized that Votes for Women meant giving up present privileges and protection they would vigorously reject the "mess of pottage" which the suffragists offer them in exchange.

Woman suffrage has just been defeated in Florida, the 19th state to defeat this cause within the last six months. Is it "bound to come?"

The yellow banner of the woman suffragists and the red flags of the Socialists intermingled on Fifth avenue on May 1st as a parade of the suffrage organizations and the annual parade of the Socialists moved simultaneously up the avenue.

In an article on "War's Debasement of Women," in the New York Times, Jane Addams speaking of the great increase of illegitimate births in regions near the soldiers training camps and in the regions of the war, says, "All such inevitable consequences of war mitigate against the age long efforts of women to establish the paternity of her child and the father's responsibility for it."

"In the interest of this effort the state has made marriage a matter of license and record, and the Church has surrounded it by every possible sanctity. Under the pressure of war, however, both of these institutions have in a large measure withdrawn their protection."

"To cite one instance of what I mean: The French Chamber of Deputies, in anticipation of the effect upon the nation of the slaughter of the men, has passed a law declaring that during these war times there shall be no such thing as illegitimacy in France."

"War benefits go equally to the mothers who are married and those who are unmarried. The nation is chiefly concerned to make up the deficit of human beings."

"I am informed that in the French churches the 'founding bones,' which had been taken away by law, have been restored. Their purpose is to offer mothers of unwelcome children an opportunity to dispose of them secretly, but still keeping them for the nation. This amounts to governmental and clerical encouragement and dissolution of family ties."

"Could there be a more definite and dreadful illustration of the tendencies of war to break down and destroy the family unit?"

Miss Addams can clearly see the horrors of these conditions as brought about in times of war. But is it not still more horrible to see women working in times of peace to bring about such conditions? The suffrage movement with which Miss Addams has identified herself is closely allied with Feminism and Socialism, both of which stand for doing away with marriage for abolishing the father from all responsibility for the child. For placing the whole burden upon the mother or for putting children in asylums. What can be said in defense of women who in times of peace ally themselves with movements, whose object is to destroy the family as the unit of society and which strike at the very roots of civilization?

WAR WILL HURT LABOR MARKET

THOUSANDS OF ITALIAN RESERVISTS WILL BE CALLED HOME TO FIGHT

Washington, May 21.—Italy's entrance into the war will have a far-reaching effect upon economic conditions in the United States. America, more than any other neutral country, will feel the jar. Statisticians in various departments of the Government today were making a special study of the immediate results noticeable in this country.

The first effect to be felt in the United States will be upon the labor market. The labor "liquidation" which has been progressing in the United States for several years as a result of the world-wide depression, may end immediately and be followed by a shortage in certain branches of the labor market as a result of the decision of the Italian Government.

In the United States there are more than 2,000,000 men of Italian birth. It is estimated here that at least 35 per cent and probably 45 per cent of this number are Italian reservists, who are honor bound to join the colors.

The names of this legion are in the files of the Italian Embassy and the various consulates throughout the country. The moment that word is officially received here that the Italian Government has decreed war against Austria, every one of these men will receive a command from the Italian Government to return to their country and join the army.

Mostly on Atlantic Seaboard

The United States Government has no specific figures showing the present residences and occupations of these men, but it is believed that the great majority are living on the Atlantic Seaboard.

In the event that these reservists should refuse to honor the call to the colors, they would hereafter be unable to return to Italy. This stipulation is expected to have great weight in determining their course. It is well known here, and generally conceded, that most of the Italian immigrants who come to the United States do so in the expectation that a few years of hard work will enable them to "put aside" enough to return home and live in virtual independence thereafter.

Statistics gathered by experts in the Department of Commerce tend to establish the fact that many Italians who come to the United States do so for the purpose of saving $1000 or $2500, so that they may go home and buy a small patch of ground from which they will be enabled to make a living thereafter.

Census of Italians

The census of 1910, enumerated 1,343,125 Italian-born people in this country and since that time about 700,000 have come over and are now residing here. In 1911, 40,833 Italian immigrants came over and in 1912, 103,680, and in 1913, 190,932, and in 1914 107,616.

Immediately after the formal declaration of war is announced by Italy, Thomas Nelson Page, the American Ambassador at Rome, will take charge of the Austrian, German and Turkish Embassies. At the same time Ambassador Penfield at Vienna, and Ambassador Gerard at Berlin, will take over the Italian Embassies. Ambassador Morgenthau at Constantinople, will follow and take charge of the Italian Embassy.

This further severance of diplomatic relations will leave the United States playing the role of general diplomatic agent for all the great first-class Powers on earth.

RUSSIAN PORT OF ARCHANGEL NOW OPEN—NAVY DEPARTMENT IS INFORMED

RUSSIA SHORT OF MUNITIONS

Since the Germans and Austrians began their determined attacks upon the Russian lines, when the spring campaign opened, it has been known here that the great difficulty which has confronted the Russian military machine has been the shortage in guns and cartridges.

Japan has furnished the Czar with a great proportion of the munitions of war which have been used against the "Pentonic Alliance." Russian agents have purchased great quantities of munitions in this country and a great quantity of these supplies are now subject to delivery. The early deliveries were billed across Siberia, with the announcement that Archangel has now been opened it is believed that future deliveries will now be shipped to that port.

It is known here that the Germans have credited their victories against Russia upon the shortage of ammunition in the Czar's military organization. The German authorities have admitted that Russia might have driven them back if it had not been on account of this shortage.

The Austrian Embassy announced today that it has no information concerning the reports recently circulated throughout the United States that there is a great demand for doctors in Austria. The reports were coupled with statements that the Austrian Government is paying $6 and $7 per day, plus expenses.

THAW TRIAL PUT OVER ONE MONTH

PEOPLE AWAIT DECISION BY COURT OF APPEALS

New York, May 21.—Opposing counsel in the case of Harry K. Thaw agreed to wait the decision of the state court of appeals before attempting to have Thaw's mental condition determined with the aid of a jury. A stipulation to this effect, signed by John B. Stanchfield of Thaw's counsel and Deputy Attorney General Obermeier was filed in the appellate division of the supreme court today.

The question before the court of appeals is virtually whether Thaw shall be given a hearing before a jury. It comes before the court on appeal by Attorney General Woodbury from a decision by the appellate division, which declined to make permanent a writ of prohibition calling Supreme Court Justice Hendrick from proceeding with the jury trial.

When the writ was dismissed counsel for the state procured a temporary stay of proceedings preventing Justice Hendrick from going ahead with the jury trial.

The consent of Thaw's attorneys today automatically extended the stay until the appeal from the writ of prohibition is passed upon.

The trial is put over for at least a month.

GEODETIC SURVEYS IN ALABAMA

The United States Coast and Geodetic Survey of the Department of Commerce has recently published a report, called Special Publication No. 24, which contains among other data the exact latitude and longitudes of 500 stations in Alabama and Mississippi. There are also given the correct distances between each two adjacent stations and the true bearings of the lines connecting them. Some of the stations are natural or artificial objects such as mountain peaks, church spires and lighthouses but many stations required special marks or monuments to preserve them. These are frequently metal tables set into solid rock or blocks of concrete. Complete descriptions of these marks and of the general locations of the stations with reference to other objects and to the features of the surrounding country are contained in the publication. Engineers and surveyors interested in any of the stations can easily find them from these descriptions.

The publication also contains the elevations of those stations which are on high ground. The point of greatest elevation in Alabama, determined by the Coast and Geodetic Survey, and probably the highest point in that state is station Cheochahaw, on the top of the mountain of the same name, which is 2113 feet above sea level. This mountain is about nine miles south of the town of Oxford and its top is a point of the boundary line between Talladega and Clay counties.

The Coast and Geodetic Survey is publishing its geodetic data for all states as rapidly as possible. Good progress has been made along this line and much valuable information is contained in the records which are now available for free distribution. Copies of the above mentioned publication, Special Publication No. 24, may be obtained by interested parties upon application to the Division of Publications, Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR AMERICAN TRADE WITH RUSSIA IMPROVING, SAYS AMERICAN EXPRESS OFFICIAL—NEW COMMERCIAL LINK ESTABLISHED

That the present situation promises well for the closer relationship between manufacturers in the United States and the Russian Empire, is indicated today by George C. Taylor, President of the American Express Co. in announcing the extension of the company's activities to that country by the appointment of Edward P. Wales Smith for many years traffic agent for the express company at Paris, France, as commercial agent at Petrograd.

"Our present step in this important field," said Mr. Taylor, "is taken after full conference with the Honorable C. J. Medzikhovsky commercial attaché of the Imperial Russian Embassy in the United States. Our plans not only have his cordial approval, but are distinctly in harmony with his earnest desire to stimulate the interchange of traffic between the U. S. and Russia by improving the conditions under which such transactions are handled."

"Already the undercurrents of trade point to new and well defined connections between the commercial interests of Russia and our own country and in view of the cordial feelings which have always existed between the two governments, the time seems expedient for expressive action on our part."

"To further the mutual enterprises already existing and to reinforce the activities of our representative at Petrograd we are sending A. C. Spencer of our Export Freight Department, New York City, to Russia on May 22 with instructions to visit Petrograd, Leningrad, Riga, Moscow, Archangel, and other Russian cities for the purpose of placing Russian importers in touch with American suppliers and to put in operation arrangements that will simplify the methods now employed in shipping between the respective countries."

LOCAL TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION PRESENTS PLAY

"A Russian Honeymoon" Given Friday Evening at High School Assembly Hall.

The Portsmouth Teachers' Association presented the three-act comedy, "A Russian Honeymoon," at High School Assembly hall on Friday evening to a capacity house, with standing room only at a premium.

The curtain went up promptly at 8.15, and disclosed a very picturesque setting, that of a Russian journeyman's house. The scenery was painted by Mr. Ernest Searles, a local decorator, and this setting added much to the effectiveness of the production.

The following was the cast of characters: Alexia Petrovitch, a journeyman, after-ward Gustave, Count Worofski, Mr. H. J. Stander.

Poleska, his wife, Miss Mary E. Crowley; Baroness Vladimir, his sister, Miss Marjorie P. Graves.

Ivan, a master shoemaker, Mr. Paul S. Nickerson; Micheline, his daughter, Miss Mary L. Rand.

Koulikoff Demetrowitch, Intendant of the Chateau Worofski, Mr. George D. Whittier.

Osip, a young peasant, Mr. Esca A. Malnes.

Scene, Russian Poland. Time 1850. Acts First and Second—A room in the house of Ivan the Shoemaker. Act Third—A drawing room in the Chateau of the Count Worofski.

The synopsis of the plot was as follows: The Count has married Poleska, and finds that she has married him for rank and title only. The Count, however, resolves to cure her and adopts a heroic remedy by assuming the character of a serf and making believe that he has tricked her into marrying a journeyman instead of a count. The Countess is then forced to endure all the poverty and hardships that fall to the lot of a serf in Russia. After suffering this life of asceticism for some time, the Count finally confesses the journeyman, which is himself, to death, and it is then that he discovers his wife's love to be unfeeling and all ends happily when "Love Conquers Pride."

The play was a very pretty one, as well as a difficult one to produce and the interpretations of all the parts were excellently carried out by each individual in the cast, and the whole was combined with a presentation of much skill and merit and reflects much credit on the participants.

The Boys' orchestra, in charge of Clyde Lougee, of the Freshman class of the High school, furnished orchestral selections between the acts.

H. J. Stander was chairman of the committee and deserves much credit for his indefatigable work which made the affair the success which it was.

The other committees were as follows: Scenery, Mr. Paul S. Nickerson; Mr. Esca A. Malnes; costumes, H. J. Stander; candy, Mrs. Laura Sumner; Miss May Martin; Miss Mildred Roberts.

Miss Katherine Heane and Miss Fannie Taylor have given valuable assistance to Mr. Stander in criticizing and coaching the play.

Candy was sold between the acts through the audience, being distributed by the Senior class of training school girls.

The substantial sum realized from this production will be used by the association for a course of lectures and musicals next season.

A BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH BY MISS SUSAN F. DRAKE

May 22, 1915

I was born in Billingham, N. H., May 22, 1833, the daughter of George Washington Drake and Susan Barker. My father was born the day, and near the hour that Washington died, hence his name.

My great grandfather, Weare Drake, moved from Hampton Falls to Billingham where he cleared the land for his farm.

Weare Drake was a grandson of Hon. Meshech Weare, first Governor or "President" of New Hampshire from 1776 to 1781. He was one of those good men who dared to love their country and be poor," says the front description on the Governor Weare monument at Hampton Falls.

Billingham, my childhood home is a village among the hills, a perfect Paradise as I think of it now. I was numbered five of nine live branches of the G. W. Drake family tree. Living in a farming community there were plenty of outdoor attractions. The holidays during the year were Thanksgiving, Fourth of July, Fast Day, Election Day and Muster or Training Day.

When four years old, the district school teacher, a boarder at our home kindly started me in school. I learned to love my books, but more I loved the running brooks, the flowers, hills, mountains, and the blue sky, to me the place of Heaven.

On a farm there are many interests even to a child. Planting, taking the sheep to the river to be washed and the sheep shearing that followed, haying, harvesting, threshing the grain by hand or with oxen treading the threshing machine are among my early mem-with Master John Durgin as my teacher during the winter term.

When I was sixteen years old, on account of financial matters my father thought best for me to try doing for myself. I willingly set out for Boston, trying my fortune with my needle, but barely made enough to pay my expenses. The work, and sitting still were torture to me,—there was no poetry in it. I wrote my father if I could go to school and be a teacher I should be perfectly happy. He replied, "Come home and I will do all I can."

The High school for girls was then under the Court House on Court street. Good Master Nichols examined me and found me qualified in all except arithmetic. I was admitted to the school and at the end of three months was doing second year's work. What joy!

In 1851 I commenced my teaching career at the Lafayette school where I taught four successive summers, returning to High school winters to assist Mr. Nichols and continuing my studies for several winters with Master Alfred Hough of the Haven school.

My next school was in the hospitable town of Newington. I was the first female teacher there for nine years. I made many life-long friends at Newington.

In 1857 I was given the Plains school, which I taught two and a half years. In 1861 I taught in Ellsworth, Me., and then was persuaded to return to the Lafayette school. The next place I lighted was at the Haven school in the spring of 1865. Next I taught in the Walker Girls' school, Miss Caroline Mason (a model teacher) having resigned.

Then came a year of teaching in Charlestown, Mass. About this time the boys' and girls' divisions of the Walker school being united, my services were again solicited. I said "If I come back I shall stay as long as you will keep me". I did. I taught in the Walker school for twenty years, enjoying the pleasant relations with my associates, teachers and pupils.

I ended my teaching career where it began, at the Lafayette school, teaching there from 1887 to June 1895.

When beginning to teach, my resolution was that I would be faithful. As I review the past I feel that this resolve was not relinquished.

When I hear of those who are filling places of honor and trust, I feel a glow of pleasure that they were once my pupils. The good or ill that I have done cannot be known till the veil between time and eternity is lifted.

NO LIMIT ON HOURS OF WORK FOR WOMEN AND GIRLS IN INDIANA

"Indiana women and girls who now work under a system which sets no limit whatever on their hours of labor, are compelled, in some industries, to toil seventy-two hours a week, or twelve hours a day. Efforts to obtain for Indiana women wage-earners a law limiting their hours of labor have repeatedly failed. The last Indiana legislature refused to pass even a ten-hour working law for women; and it refused to give women the vote."—Indiana Times.
